A shadow continues to lit across the state of Maine.

Caruso, the famous tenor, has been "flattening" badly for several days.

Sam Gompers can now almost claim the presidency of the American Federation of Labor by right of possession.

It is a comforting word to hear from the lips of Governor-elect Hughes of New York that he will be governor of his state.

If the law under which President Smith of the Mormon church was fined after the birth of his 43rd child is retroactive, the venerable president may need a fat pocketbook.

Safely ensconced in the bosom of their families, the Vermont legislators can this week ponder over their sins of omission and commission, at the same time promising to do better when they return to Montpelier next week.

Now that the Worcester, Mass., public library has barred Mark Twain's "Eve's Dairy," because Eve was portrayed in the dress-makers' styles of her day, we may confidently expect a burning word or two from the great humorist.

People are loath to credit the charges now made against Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco in view of his splendid record during the troublous days of "Piseco's recent great calamity. They all hope that the "daring mayor" will be able to clear his skirts of the mud that has been thrown in the last few days.

LET THEM DIRECT.

Several new trustees and directors of state institutions step into office in Vermont with the force of example before them—the example that those stewards who fail to perform the duties of their office are no longer desired in this state. So let them with all the integrity of purpose they can summon determine to live up to the promises which they take in assuming the positions. Through them the people of Vermont desire to be kept more in touch with their administrative affairs, with the details of the conduct of the house of correction, the state prison, the insane asylum and the industrial school. It goes without saying, of course, that it is the right of the people to have this close touch which they are now demanding. It has always been their right but heretofore they have been derelict in demanding it. This intimacy will require of the directors and trustees frequent meetings of the complete boards, direct control of the officers of the institutions and regular reports to the governor of the state and by him to the citizens. The new members of the several boards are men to command respect, including Eli Porter of Wilmington, trustee of the state insane asylum; Roger Hurlburt of Hyde Park, of the industrial school; Newman K. Chaffee of Rutland, for the state prison and industrial school; Charles H. A. Stafford of Morrisville, for the state asylum. Their selection was well made, and we may expect conscientious service.

A GREAT SPECTACLE.

As the result of an event in New Haven Saturday, it becomes apparent that Harvard is a splendid paper football college, but that Yale is the actual team. On paper the Cambridge institution was figured to be the better; on the real gridiron their friends down in Connecticut showed them a thing or two. Splendidly equipped physically, the for-

HURRIED BACK TO MILK COWS.

Eloping Pair Didn't Have Time to Look Up Minister.

Winsted, Conn., Nov. 26.—It was not the prospect of an angry father on their trail, but of losing kine in the barnyard that rushed through the marriage of an eloping pair last night.

Otto Anderson and Lucy Winery, a widow, both of Burlington, slipped off to New Hartford to indulge in the romance of a secret wedding.

Now the town clerk, Frederick Jewell, is all the officers in one necessary to sign, seal and deliver a wife to a man; therefore Anderson, when the license was handed him, contracted for the ceremony. As Jewell hesitated, Otto added:

"I really haven't any time to look up a minister. It's long past milking hour, and it don't do the cows any good to go too long without being milked."

The argument proved convincing, and the knot was tied.

FORETOLD HER OWN DEATH.

Pensioner of War of 1812, Aged 103, Saw Death in Her Dream.

East Orange, N. J., Nov. 25.—"Aunt" Ann Betts died yesterday at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Chamney Thornton, 10 Church place, of peritonitis. It is asserted she was 103 years old on October 6 last. Mrs. Betts fell ill a day or two before her birthday, and unable to take part in the festivities, she became very despondent and said she wanted to die. She failed steadily from that time.

A few days ago Mrs. Betts told her family she had beheld a vision. In her sleep she had seen two large floral pieces which represented her two surviving sons, and five smaller pieces which represented her grandchildren. Arranged about these were clusters of cut flowers representing the great-grandchildren. She interpreted this as a premonition of her death.

CLOSE CALL FROM METEOR.

Drops Between Neighboring Homes With Flash and Shock.

Marion, O., Nov. 26.—The families of George Kragdon and Margaret Diebold, living in neighboring houses, were startled last night by a dazzling light, followed by a concussion that shook their houses. There was a hissing like escaping steam.

A meteor had fallen between the houses, burying itself deep, and the steam was caused by the hot mass coming in contact with the damp earth.

From the size of the hole it is judged the meteor was a foot or more in diameter.

It is getting pretty close to weighing time for the turkey in our window. He is big and fat too. Easier to guess the weight of a big fat turkey than a poor one. Nearly everybody in town has guessed—many several times. You can guess as often as you wish, but you will have to hurry. Time is getting short.
